IT project manager

← Back

What you'll do

You could work in-house for a large organisation, or for a consultancy firm going into different organisations for specific tasks.

This is a broad role and your day-to-day tasks will include:

- finding out what the client needs and minimising risk to the business
- working out and agreeing timescales, budgets and quality
- using project management software to plan and resource stages
- co-ordinating the project team, keeping clients and managers informed of progress
- solving problems as they arise and adjusting plans
- providing documentation and training for users of the new system
- ensuring a smooth changeover from the old IT system to the new one
- confirming satisfaction before signing off and evaluating completed tasks

Career path and progression

With training and experience, you could become a senior project manager or move into more specialised roles like cyber security.

You could become a freelance consultant.

You could also go into departmental management or operations management.

Skills required

You'll need:

- excellent organisational and leadership skills
- the ability to understand complex information and explain it to others
- advanced IT skills
